A. J. Pickens
CLAIMED in Louisville
Former Sheriff Dies Away

Louisville Hospital Saturday Afternoon

Albert Joseph Pickens died at 2:15 o'clock Saturday, September 23 at Norton Hospital, Louisville where he had gone for treatment. Mrs. Pickens and his adopted daughter, Mrs. L. E. Yates and Mr. Yates were present when the end came. The remains arrived here Sunday morning for burial.

Funeral services were held at the Methodist church at 10:30 Monday. Friends from all over the county gathered in to pay a last tribute of love and esteem to the deceased and the church, including the galleries, were crowded. The funeral discourse was delivered by Rev. Robert Lear, with an invocation by Rev. R. T. McConnell. The floral offerings were very beautiful and abundant. Interment followed at Maple View Cemetery.

Mr. Pickens is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jennie McConnell Pickens and adopted daughter, Mrs. L. E. Yates. He is also survived by three brothers and five sisters: John T., J. A. C. and James A. Pickens all of this county; Mrs. A. A. Deboe, Mrs. Eliza R. Deboe, Mrs. Lou C. Lamb, Mrs. W. L. Wilson and Mrs. P. C. Capshaw.

The deceased was a son of William C. and Susan Lamb Pickens and was born December 22, 1852. He began life for himself as a farmer in early manhood. He always took an interest in local politics and in 1882, he was elected county Jailer, serving two terms. So popular did he become as Jailer that in 1886 he was elected Sheriff of the county and so well did he serve the people in that capacity that he was re-elected without opposition. In 1896 he was appointed by the governor of Kentucky to the office of Stewart of the Feeble-minded Institute at Frankfort, serving in that capacity four years.

There is perhaps no man in the county who has a better acquaintance with the people of the county or has more friends and admirers than did Mr. Pickens.

SPECIAL RATE FOR OCTOBER ONLY

During the month of October the Crittenden Press is offering a special rate of one dollar per year for new or renewal subscriptions for subscribers in this and adjoining counties. We want every family in this county to read the PRESS and during this month we are going to give everyone an opportunity to get the paper for one dollar per year.

The Press is your d^r paper and it is to your interest as well as ours that you take advantage of this opportunity. This offer is to persons living in this and adjoining counties only.

BARBECUE

One of the most enjoyable picnics of the season was the barbecue, given at Orme's Park by Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cook, to the members of the Senior B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist church. Mr. and Mrs. Cook were assisted by Misses Elizabeth Cook and Forrest Hammock. The tables groaned under the weight of the good things to eat, prepared as only Mrs. Cook can.

There were barbecued goat, chicken and squirrel, boiled corn with butter, creamed potatoes, bread and beans, pickles, onions, coffee with whipped cream and coca-cola.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cook, Mr. and Mrs. P. Guess; Mr. and Mrs. Ira Pierce; Mr. and Mrs. Blanton Wiggins; Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Stephens and son, Thomas; Messrs. Lawrence Hard and C. Mayes; Misses Marian Hard, Ebbie Wathen, Zora Lewis, Seth Stephens, Ethel Hard, Leffa Wilborn, Margaret Hard, Elizabeth Cook, Forrest Hammock, Thelma Travis, Margaret Guess, Lavine Guess, Lois Hicklin, Virginia Doss, Anna E. Hard, Laura Butler and Katherine Hughes.

Time was passed by pitching darts, drop the handkerchief, "Going to Mars" and other games and all present voted it the most delightful picnic they had ever attended.

THE MISSING WORD

The word omitted last week in the Missing Word Contest was "US", and should have appeared in the advertisement of National Dry Cleaners between the word "call" and "Telephone". We told you that the word commenced with U and ended with S thus spelling the word for you.

This week we will not tell you what the word is but it begins with "K" and contains six letters.

Farm Bureau Notes

Interest in the Crittenden County Fair is growing right along and indications are that the one to be held Saturday will be the biggest ever held in Marion. It is expected that the entries in live stock will be far greater than last year. Keen interest is evident in the horse and mule department and the judging there will require a nice decision.

The babies will be judged at 1:30 P. M. and announcement is hereby made so let no one who plans to enter fail to be there by that. A space will be allotted in the tent near the entrance for the final "fixing" of the babies and all contestants are urged to be there and report to either Mrs. Lester Terry or Mrs. Dr. Nunn between 1:00 and 1:30 if they plan to enter. Who will have the best baby in the county? That event alone is worth the price of admission to the entire fair.

A well qualified judge will be here from Lexington to judge the live stock and farm products and it is planned that he will have several assistants to help him in the various classes.

Don't forget about a cover crop for your bare fields this winter. Right now is the time to seed it on your tobacco and pea fields. Both will wash badly this winter if not properly taken care of.

A special caponizing demonstration will be made at the Fair grounds to everyone interested in this line of work. Mr. Stribling will have charge of this. Don't miss it as capons will make more meat and meat of a much higher quality.

Scrub Cows Eat Profits

"Do you keep cows or do cows keep you?" That was one of the questions that confronted farmers and dairymen who visit the State Fair the week of Sep. 11 to 16. The question formed the main theme of the exhibit which was made by the college dairy department to show why farmers and dairymen cannot afford to keep low-producing cows.

The exhibit was built around the models of two cows, one a well-bred high producing animal and the other a scrubby, boarder type of individual found on many farms. A huge book was displayed over the models of the animals to show the profits that each type of cow returns to the farmer during a year. The records in the book were taken from two farms in Kentucky showed the milk and cream alone from ten cows of the high producing type yielded almost 2 1/2 times as much profit during the course of a year as that from the cows of the scrub type. Feed records from the same farms showed that the ten poor cows consumed as much during a year as did the ten profitable cows.

The value of the well-bred cows was further emphasized by other facts which were displayed with the two models. The relative value of the calves from the well-bred and scrub cows, the amount of feed consumed during a year by each type of cow and the amount of labor required to take care of them was shown by means of actual results obtained on the two farms.

Columbus Akers, an inmate of the county poor farm, died Monday.

J. Watts Lamb of Blue Diamond, is visiting friends and relatives in the city this week.

When Washington Knocked Out Columbus

Not a prize fight, but a knock-out blow for the early development of Kentucky. Washington, D. C., vs. Columbus, Ky.

Here's the story in brief:

The first Congress was called upon to decide upon a location for the Capital of these United States.

Thomas Jefferson, then Secretary of State under President Washington, wanted it at Columbus, Ky.

If you would know why his plan failed—why Washington was finally selected as the Capital—

This is but one of the many interesting stories of little known facts about the 120 counties of Kentucky which will come from the pen of the Louisville Post's gifted special writer, Mr. Ralph Coghlan.

Some of the others are: The story of Fluorspar, one of the most valuable metals in industry. How Paducah got its High School gymnasium. When King George ate Kentucky ham. The county which does not contain one illiterate child. Mayfield, "the old-fashioned girl," how she surpassed the country club flapper in everything really worth while. How $300,000 was spent by one county to get out of the mud. When President Tyler was a coal miner in Kentucky.

This series will begin Monday, October 2, and continue daily thereafter. Don't miss the first one.

CITY PLANNING PAYS WELL

Haphazard Method of Allowing Community to Develop is Poor Policy and Costly in the End.

The civic leagues and societies that get after the authorities to compel the cleaning up of cities and offer prizes and other inducements for well-kept lawns, attractive flower beds, reformed back yards and the like are advancing culture and civilization.

Many cities have followed Washington's example and have art commissions that pass upon all public work to keep it in harmony with some established plan of artistic development.

We should go further than that. Our building departments carefully examine every plan made for private as well as for public buildings and prescribe just how the walls shall be for strength, how high the building may go, what the sanitary details must be. The people have become used to such control and direction. The city art commission should have greater power and should co-operate with the building department and pass on all plans for all buildings, private as well as public.—Washington Star.

Roadside Trees Always Worth While.

The example set by the state of Minnesota, which will plant some 30,000 trees along its highways this year and each succeeding year will add several thousands more, conveys a lesson not only in reforestation in a relatively treeless state but in the esthetic value of arboriculture as well. Undoubtedly the years to come will bring their reward and travelers of the future, if they give the matter a thought at all, will pay tribute to the foresight which furnished them with graceful shade and added beauty of a peculiarly restful kind to the landscape. A ribbon of road stretching across a treeless plain is but a bleak thing, whereas it becomes an "avenue" when graceful trees nod in the breezes on both sides of it and travelers passing through into other states which have neglected their opportunities will not fail to note the difference. The roadside tree on the Pacific coast is a matter worthy of the attention of both the planter and the conservationist.—Portland Oregonian.

Select Location for Plants.

The south side of a structure if fully exposed to the sun and not shaded in any way is likely to prove particularly trying for many plants, especially those which require a cool location. Their foliage is likely to become scorched and burned during hot, bright days in summer, and if the plants themselves are not killed, they commonly fail to grow well and are unsatisfactory. When such trying conditions have to be met, plants which can withstand considerable heat and dryness should be selected. On the other hand, care should be taken that plants which can withstand cold and lack of direct sunlight should be planted upon the north side of the structures.

Oil and Air-Cooled Motors.

As the result of tests made during the war at the aircraft factory at Farnborough, Eng., it was demonstrated that an air-cooled internal combustion engines as much as 40 to 47 per cent of the cooling was, under certain conditions, done by the crankcase. The result has been the design of a so-called oil-cooled engine, in which the crankcase has been greatly enlarged so as to almost completely envelop the cylinder.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

IN MEMORY

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCune at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning July 23, 1922 and took from them their daughter, Jewel, who was 19 years eleven months and eleven days old. Her death was due to a short illness of typhoid fever.

Funeral services were conducted at Union Church by Rev. J. C. Lilly with interment in the Maple View Cemetery at Marion.

Jewel, an endearing name, expresses what she meant to her parents. She was a rare "jewell." To know her was to love her. She was a source of help and inspiration to her family. In the home life with them, her best was given and today there is a vacancy in their hearts which can never be replaced.

Death, that mysterious dissolution of the soul from the body, always fills us with wonder at the majesty and power of God, Who hath created us. When it comes as the crown of a long and useful life, it is a fitting thing; but it seems, O! cruel Death, what hast thou to do with this young girl just in the bloom of life? For our very life-strings bleed at the thoughts of parting with her.

But let us lay down our broken hearts at the feet of our Divine

Master, and may the mist of our eyes, falling through the hope, create a rainbow whereby we rededicate the services of our lives to the Christ, our Savior, who hath through His voluntary death, made possible a vapors;

Amid these earthly damps;

What seem to us but sad, funeral tapers,

May be Heaven's distant lamps

In that cloister's stillness and seclusion,

By guardian angels led,

Safe from temptation, safe from sins' pollution,

She lives, whom we call dead.

Seemed Only Explanation.

Wilbur had seen the various peddlers come through the alley with horses and wagons pulling their wares. So when the scissors grinder appeared one day carrying the bulky machine on his back there seemed to be but one explanation possible to the lad. When the man came near enough Wilbur asked sympathetically: "Mister, is your horse dead?"
